Happy New Year! Short issue this month as the holidays have kept me busy...

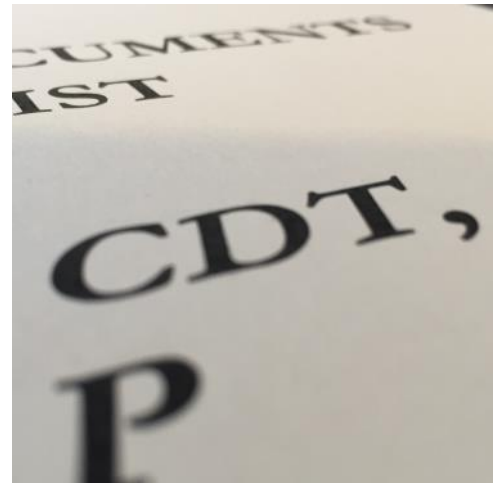

Up first, join us on January 20th at 11am at the Engineer's Club for a top quality lunch and learning from Paul Coats of the American Wood Council on the newest old thing in the construction industry: Wood! With the 2012 IBC and lots of innovative engineering technologies available now, wood is fashionable and a great option for buildings that are bigger and better and more sustainable than ever. Don't miss it! Register at stlouiscsi.org.

Next, the CDT Study Sessions are filling up fast. Register by January 31st and receive FREE study materials. This is the gateway certification for up-and-coming professionals and for seasoned professionals who need a little more horsepower. Register at stlouiscsi.org.

Also within find last minute news on the January 21-22 CRCA Trade Show. And be advised, fellow regional CSI member Jerry Putnam is on the ballot for Institute Vice President and could use your support. Learn more about Jerry at <https://www.linkedin.com/in/jerry-putnam-8022715>.

Best wishes,

2012 IBC Essentials for Wood Construction

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 20, 2016

11:00AM—1:00PM

ENGINEERS' CLUB OF ST. LOUIS
4359 LINDELL BLVD
ST LOUIS, MO, 63108

This presentation takes the mystery out of the 2012 International Building Code (IBC) parameters for wood in commercial non-residential and multi-family residential construction. Topics will include: maximum building sizes through the use of pre-calculated tables for eight multi-story occupancies, with and without frontage and sprinkler increases; establishing required fire resistance; special provisions for pedestal buildings; precautions required for buildings under construction; criteria for finishes, appendages, and other wood features; and the scoping of referenced wood design standards and Chapter 23 provisions. Participants may download a complimentary copy of 2012 Code Conforming Wood Design (CCWD), a new publication of AWC and the International Code Council, at www.awc.org.

REGISTER AT STLOUISCSI.ORG

Paul Coats, P.E., C.B.O., is the Southeast Regional Manager for the American Wood Council (AWC), which produces internationally recognized design standards for wood construction. His work experience includes building inspection (City of Indianapolis), plan review (State of Indiana), project engineering, and code consulting. Prior to joining AWC, he was on the code development staff of BOCA Inter-
